Church Announcements 26th July 2020

1. Next Sunday 2nd August, our service of Holy Communion will be in church at 11.00am. Note: 11am. This is the new time for our services all year. Please join us then for this special occasion.
2. Details of how things will happen will be published on the church website and facebook page in the next couple of days. Please do take time to read through the guidance so you know what to expect next week.
3. Can I wish every blessing to each and every one of you who have joined us in the past 4.5 months, especially those who are not Killyleagh Parish members. It's been wonderful having you with us and a little sad that this season is coming to an end.
4. The good news however is that we are giving serious consideration to installing fixed cameras in the church to allow us to stream our services live online, also allowing viewing at other times, like our current online services. Watch out for further announcements on this. Subscribe to the youtube channel or become a friend of the church, so we can update you.
5. At Harvest, we give thanks to God each year for his bounty and blessings. This year, or perhaps next year, if this October is too soon, I'd like to have a special Harvest Thanksgiving Service and am inviting anyone who can, from wherever you are, to join us as we give thanks for this blessed time together as an online worship community.
6. Thank you to Rev Hector Wanliss for leading last week.
7. Thanks to all the other co-leaders over the weeks and to the folk working behind the scenes doing the technical stuff for the website and facebook. All of you have made things possible.
8. But none more so than Darren Brown and his son Joe, the Soaring Productions team, who responded positively to a phone call on St Patrick's Day, not knowing what they were letting themselves in for. Yet here we are 30 services later and they are still willingly giving of themselves in such a generous and talented way. We'll never be able to thank them enough for what they have done and how they have done it. From us all Darren and Joe, huge thanks.
